THE STORYTELLERS

2012 Towards Employment Alumni

Ronnie Cannon is a father, a community leader, a non-profit board member and serves on citywide initiatives. As a young person, Ronnie made a decision that influenced the trajectory of his life, and this experience continues to shape his actions, to the benefit of many. He came to Towards Employment in 2012 and advanced steadily – he is currently a member of the Towards Employment leadership team, serving as the Senior Manager of Community Engagement.

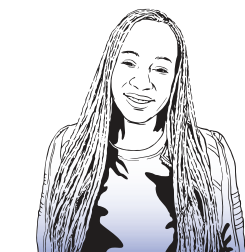

2023 Towards Employment Alumni, BJA/RISE Program

Alisha Brooks-Hall is a young mother almost through college, on her way to becoming a social worker. As a graduate of one of the pre-release programs that Towards Employment offers, she started her second career journey while incarcerated. Alisha's goal is to help people returning home from prison to create networks and find resources, so they can find strength to get back up and move forward.

2012 Towards Employment Alumni

Tracy Patton's experiences battling addiction and returning from incarceration fuel her commitment to community and to other women struggling with addiction. After graduating from Towards Employment and starting a career pathway in hospitality, she found her way to providing direct assistance to women addressing mental health and dependency. She is currently a Substance Use Disorder Counselor, a Quality Mental Health Specialist, a Smoking Cessation Specialist and the founder of Survived To Live For Women In Recovery.

2023 Towards Employment Alumni, BJA/RISE Program

LaTonya Cliff is a Case Manager at Towards Employment working with young men and women, hoping that they can learn from their experiences and find the strength and connections needed to build a career. She knows firsthand how trauma, violence and abuse can lead to bad decisions and chaos. Her life and career journey provide a foundation she uses to provide council, understanding and inspiration.

MODERN WARRIOR EXPERIENCE

Dominick Farinacci and US Army Veteran Jaymes Poling created the national touring production Modern Warrior LIVE, an immersive music and narrative experience that chronicles Jaymes' journey through three deployments in Afghanistan and subsequent transition back home. As the production provided a catalyst for meaningful conversation about stigma, mental health, post-traumatic growth, and resiliency, Farinacci and Poling began to see many through lines that connected veteran stories to those of returning citizens or people with involvement in the criminal justice system. Stigma can create barriers to communication that leave many feeling isolated and unable to share their struggles. The Modern Warrior EXPERIENCE, a collaborative program that uses the model for storytelling Farinacci created in their Modern Warrior LIVE production, strives to tear down those barriers to communication, allowing individuals to share the unfiltered reality of their journey, and in doing so carve a path for others, hoping for a better tomorrow.
